THE HI • O • HI

er, diplomat, counselor, and friend.

acquires that natural bent for learning.

To that unheralded group of men and women, our Trustees, we dedicate this volume of the Hi-O-Hi. They must perform painless surgery on an aching budget.

DEDICATION

Co-education at the cross-roads. Outside the library....
gossip, scandal, and learning meet on common ground.
Inside.....three hundred thousand volumes gather notations, finger prints, dust.

Those first few weeks of the freshman year, when fond illusions of college as you imagined it disappear...the rush to buy books...giving the college the "onceover"...decorating your room with a hundred things you bought for no reason at all...meeting and making friends...going to lectures to see what the other sex looks like—those are the first memories of college life not to be forgotten. ¶ As time went on—a cool autumn afternoon on the campus...cheers from the stadium...the tolling of the chapel bell...the dance that night...the ranking system, the administration, the faculty, the luck. ¶ Those last few weeks of...caps and gowns...bequeathing possessions...the final address...the pass-out ticket...you long after you have forgotten the number of your chapel seat or rule eight

...the band playing TEN THOUSAND STRONG as it comes marching across the moment alone...silence...bull sessions, cat sessions...cramming for blue books...damning prior year, when illusions of a college career became a reality...settling all accounts these are some of the thoughts which we hope the 1934 Hi-O-Hi will preserve for in the Century handbook.

Memorial Arch

Dedicated to the Oberlin martyrs of the Boxer Rebellion in 1900, the Memorial Arch stands today keeping ever fresh in the memories of Oberlin student generations the spirit that led this group to sacrifice their lives on the altar of their cause. Time in its swift passage is merciful to those who live to remember, slowly effacing the memory of the deed. Man's ingenuity fashions monuments to prevent total oblivion of martyrdom. But the spirit of martyrdom is self-perpetuating. Today it is as alive as ever in the hearts of Oberlin graduates throughout the world. In a dedicatory spirit Oberlin carries on the work of uniting mankind.

Allen Hospital

If beauty were not our first thought in presenting these pictures of Oberlin's buildings, an X would probably appear over the door on the east wing of this one. For it leads into the student clinic of the college, the concentration point of the sick and near-sick of the school.

We have never seen an expectant father waiting there (to the best of our knowledge), but we have seen lines of worried students waiting to have their depths probed, their ailments described. Besides it is a very nice place to spend a restful week-end, especially in the face of an unprepared-for blue book.

Warner Concert Hall

To the listener on the outside the strange unharmonized symphony emitting from the windows of Warner Hall on a summer afternoon gives all the indications of a year round musical marathon. Strings crying shrilly under unmerciful bowing, pianos giving up the ghost
under constant bombardment, clarinets trilling out their last,
the blare of a trumpet, and countless voices, going higher,

higher, higher till you look at the roof expectantly— you have heard all of these, and perhaps commented. But inside it is another story. Musicians, young and old, go about their work with efficiency and dispatch. This is the side of the Con seldom heard, or commented on.

Allen Art Building

The grass grows green in Oberlin, very green indeed on the plaza in front of the Art Building. A picture of charm and beauty presents itself to the viewer; those well-worn brick walks and neatly trimmed hedges, the shrubbery scattered around the building—all of these add not a little to the exterior charm. Those two large vases lending classic tone to the picture, the arched porch, the grated windows, the great bronze door at the entrance all lend themselves to the illusion of a transplanted Italian setting. In the rear is the tiny court with its own fountain out of which a thin stream of water rises when the water pressure is strong, offering feeble opposition to the Boy with a Dolphin.

Finney Chapel

After twenty-five years of existence Finney Chapel still packs them in. Not voluntarily, of course, but such demonstrative voluntary turn-outs as those for Dean Sperry's lectures this spring prove that chapel does fill a place in college life. How familiarly rings the chapel bell four days a week, slowly and monotonously for nine minutes; then in swiftening peals for one minute it seems to be ringing out its last hurried call.

At noon its twenty chimes check us in our course, there follows a moment of silence, then the rising prelude of the organ. Sixteen hundred curious necks crane to the left to discover the bill of fare for the day. Chapel services are a custom; custom defies a Review poll.

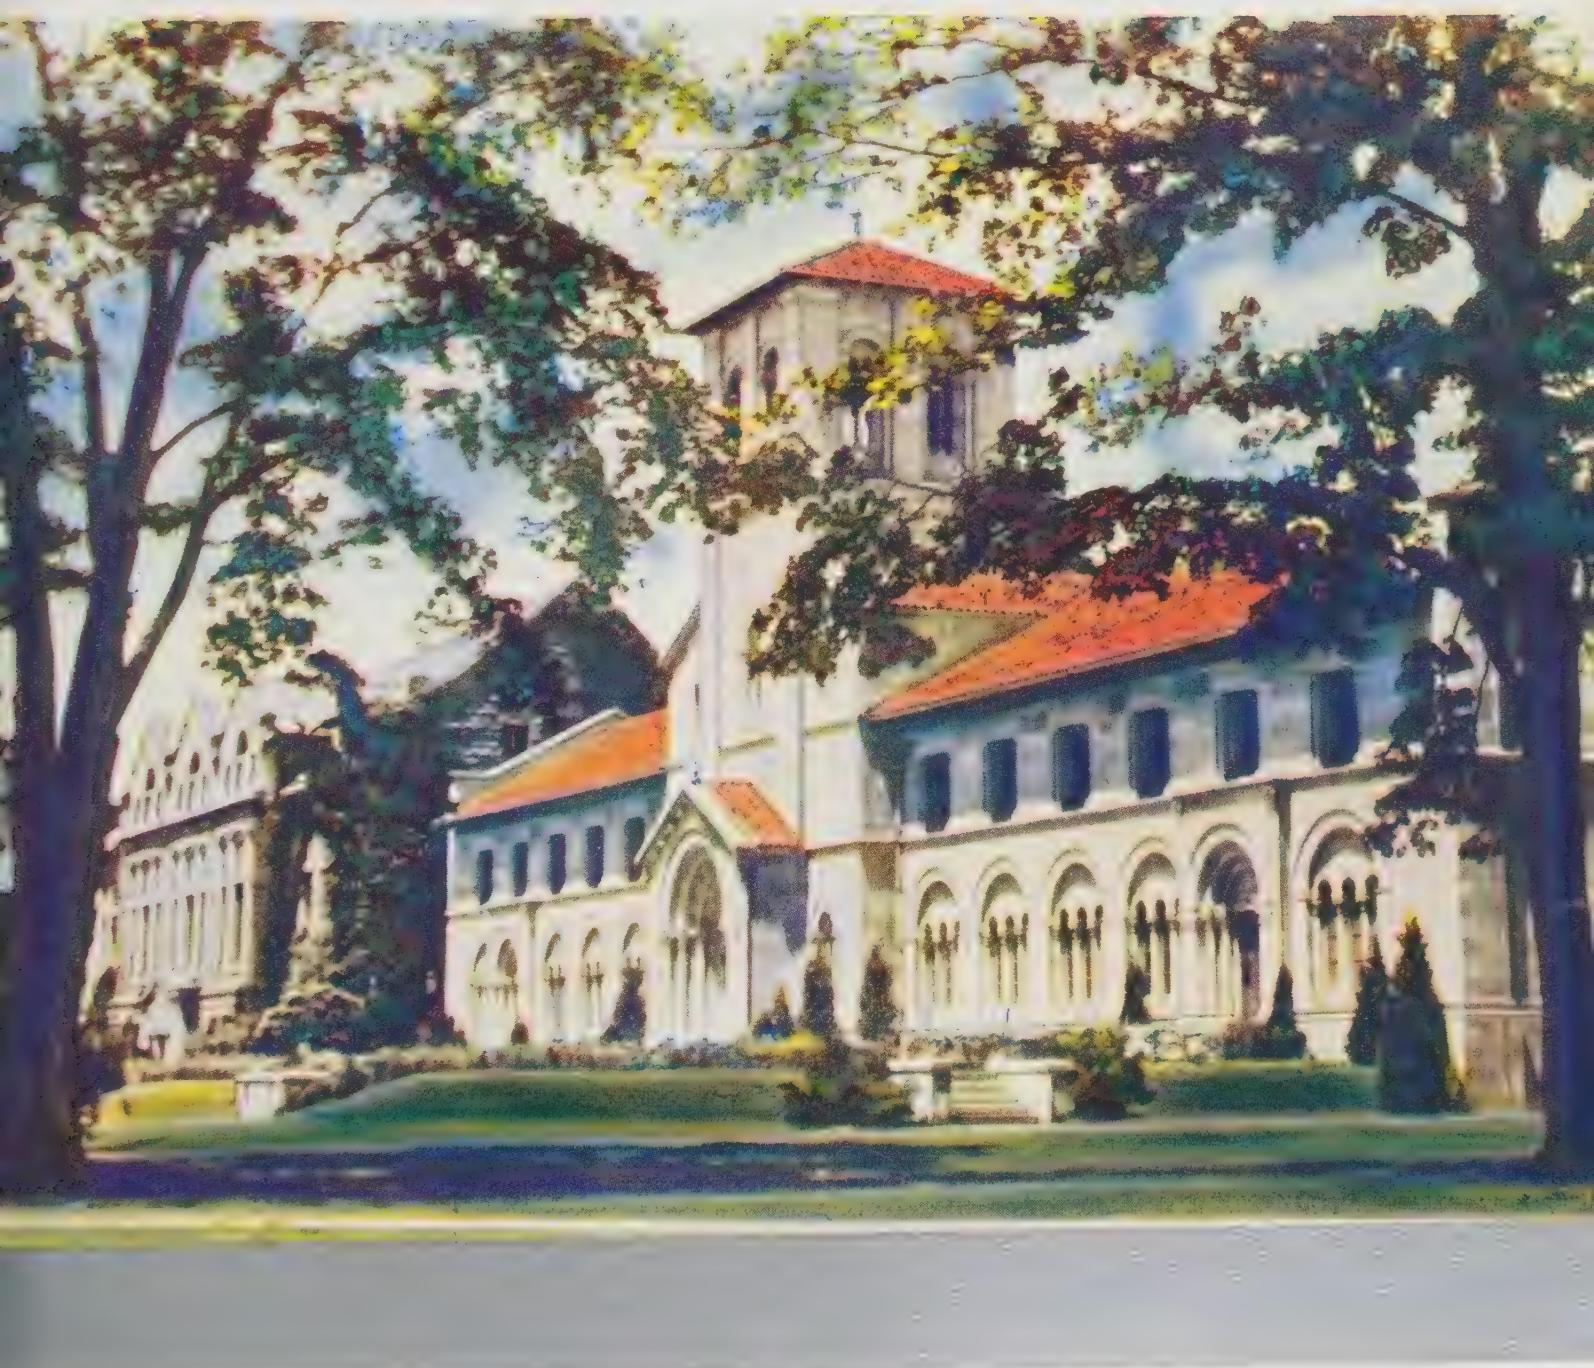

Theological Quadrangle

Whatever became of that glistening rooster that proudly surmounted the latest addition to Oberlin's building program for the short space of three months? Proud fellow, he was, sitting on top of the world.

From his point of vantage, when the wind from the south gently wheeled him around till his tail flaunted the Memorial Arch, he looked down on a green court in the midst of four austere units of the Quadrangle.

But one night foul play was done. The next morning's sun shone down on an empty weather-vane holder and the glory of the Quadrangle had suffered its first set back.

Evelyn V. Latbam '29 and Dorothy Hall '27, Assistant and Editor in the Alumni Office

WE LIKE TO CATCH THEM YOUNG

The Alumni Association of Oberlin College is a half-way house.

Its doors look two ways. To the alumni it brings the College, interpreting new movements, new men, the new day. It binds together a large body of people in a common bond, gives them a footing of fellowship and shared memory. Its agencies are direct contact with the alumni, and, even more important, the wider circle of the Alumni Magazine.

To the College the Alumni Association brings from its members both tangible service—as in the gift of money, the sending of students, the offering of constructive opinions and advice—and a service that is more intangible—continuing tradition, an atmosphere of sympathy and understanding and affection.

Now to this ideal of double service, this "alumni-consciousness," we like to convert our students in their undergraduate days. This is hard to do, because the average undergraduate is prone to look upon the alumni with a lifting of the eyebrow. He will never be as they are. But time goes on, and it is the part of wisdom to grow old gracefully.

If the undergraduate begins to look upon his College, not as something he is attached to for four years only, but as something he will be attached to for life, it is reasonable to suppose that his attitude toward it will be changed. Colors will deepen ever so slightly, and the golden dream be recognized for what it is before it begins to vanish. And this, if it is achieved, will not be the Association's least claim upon its members.

George Whitfield Andrews

Died August 18, 1932

*Instructor in Organ and Composition, 1882-1892
Professor of Organ and Composition, 1892-1931*

The memory of Dr. Andrews as teacher, as musician, as a Christian nobleman, will live on undiminished, as a force for all that is true and beautiful and good, in the minds and hearts of uncounted men and women, old and young, whose lives he touched.....and blessed.

John Oscar Lofberg

Died November 10, 1932

For five years Professor of Classics in Oberlin College. Beloved by his students for his sympathy and his kindness. Honored by his colleagues for his learning and his judgment. Cherished by his friends for his joyousness and his loyalty.

MOCK CONVENTION

As Oberlin Goes, So Goes the Nation struck a snag at the seventeenth Mock Convention on the shady campus here last May when 1,154 delegates nominated Owen D. Young, New York industrialist, on the eleventh ballot.
Young, after wiring his congratulations to the convention heads "for exciting

the students' interest in current questions" promptly refused the nomination by declaring he was not "in the least" interested in the presidency.

National Democratic party leaders finally selected Governor Franklin Delano Roosevelt of New York as the 32nd occupant of the White House, and Oberlin's efforts to predict her tenth winner went "blooey" despite the assurances of Elliott V. Grabill, student chairman.

But a memorable wet-dry fight, which continued until two a.m. of the following morning, saved the Convention from total disaster. The prohibition fight drew national attention and was of sufficient importance to bring editorial comment from more than a score of newspapers. Amid scenes of wild confusion Oberlin students voted for continuation of the Eighteenth Amendment and stricter enforcement after the balloting swayed precariously throughout the evening.

The delegates in an earlier vote had turned thumbs down on prohibition by one of the narrowest margins in Oberlin mock convention history, 552 to 546. A timely amendment, however, by Richard Irwin, now teaching at Oberlin-in-Shansi, turned the victory to the drys, who were headed by Joseph Wheeler, son of the late Wayne B. Wheeler, organizer of the Anti-Saloon League.

New York's solid vote of 94 for the wet cause seemed to uphold Resolutions Chairman Franklin Bedford's prediction that the Convention would be dripping wet. Wheeler contended that drys would not support the modification platform, which in effect meant the nullification of the Eighteenth Amendment.

A silence fell upon the convention delegates and those in the "galleries" as the gentleman from Wisconsin, Russell Nye, condemned prohibition as "bigoted, fanatical, and tyrannical." This attack, humorous as it may have been meant to be, was startling to Oberlin audiences because the Anti-Saloon League, most powerful of dry organizations, was founded in the First Church, a stone's throw from the convention tent. Theodore Ropp, representing Louisiana, turned upon Nye with:

"What do the wets want? They want the government to raise its revenue on a vicious, habit-forming beverage," he declared. Wet forces answered that coffee, backed by the drys, was equally habit-forming, and won a moral victory when a "damp" amendment was accepted by the convention at a special session the following afternoon.

The convention draft, read by Allan Clapp, then president of the Oberlin Peace Society, called for the recognition of Soviet Russia, reduction of the tariff, farm relief, revision of the Versailles treaty, immediate proportionate disarmament, renunciation of extra-territoriality privileges in China, unemployment insurance, Philippine independence, and rigid governmental supervision of public utilities. Repeal of the Comstock Anti-Birth-Control Act was urged by an overwhelming vote, but another plank, favoring bimetallism, was voted down by the delegates.

The Oberlin delegates and many townspeople lined the streets to watch the parade, which officially opened the convention. Not since 1864 had Oberlin witnessed a Democratic convention, for up to last May the G. O. P. elephant held the spotlight. Heralded by a procession of 40 floats and five bands, the convention marched to an improvised tent, where amplifying apparatus broadcast jazz records and student speeches with equal zeal . . .

But to get back to the bands and the parade, Dr. Clarence Ward, head of the department of fine arts, who headed a committee of judges, declared that the Massachusetts delegation, under the supervision of Vincent Cameron, should be awarded the brilliant red prize banner . . . Four floats tied for second honors: New York, Maryland, Georgia and Mississippi . . .

ett Joslyn, parade chairmen, there were cows, dogs, horses, cats—and, ah yes, donkeys, carts, limousines, wagons, buggies, trucks, and prairie schooners, miners, bell-boys, cowboys, bathing beauties, bankers, lawyers, teetotalers, soured staggerers, bartenders, skyscrapers, flower floats, trains, tableaus, Indians, policemen; and—but why go on? Any one who has seen an Oberlin mock convention parade knows that it defies description . . .

The keynote speaker was Breckinridge Long, assistant Secretary of State under President Woodrow Wilson, and noted barrister. Speaking in serious vein, Long flayed the Hoover administration and Republican policies.

"The Republican party has represented itself as the prosperity party," he told his enthusiastic audience, "and President Hoover pictures himself as the 'prosperity bringer.'

"But we have not had prosperity, even with the great engineer at the throttle," Long added. "Hoover prates of economy measures but never lifts his hand in execution of these measures.

"We have half the gold of the world, our granaries are overflowing, but the unemployed stagger through our streets in great numbers."

Thus continued Long, long into the evening.

The second session of the Mock Convention was devoted to "pointing with pride" to the eight presidential possibilities: Governor Franklin Delano Roosevelt of New York, the heavy favorite; former Governor Alfred E. Smith, 1928 standard bearer; Newton D. Baker of Cleveland; Governor Albert Ritchie of Maryland, "the co-eds' choice"; Governor "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, "the people's patron"; clean-cut Melvin "call-me-Mel" Taylor, Chicago banker; Speaker John N. Garner of Texas, where men are men; and Owen D. Young, who sent the Oberlin delegates away humming Say It Isn't So.

Chic Sale, Alaska's favorite son, found but 34 disciples up to the fourth ballot, and thereafter failed to appear in the scoring column. Popeye "blew himself down" to 16 votes—arf! arf! Favorite sons fell by the wayside early. Senator Reed drew 36 votes; Governor Harry Byrd of Virginia captured 24; Governor George White was given the Ohio First ballot of 52.

Oberlin's 17th Mock Convention is over, but the memories linger on . . .

Otterbein 18—Oberlin 0

Running up against an experienced squad boasting 11 1931 letter-men, the Yeoman eleven dropped its first football encounter to Otterbein, 18-0. With Captain Barker out of the game from an injury sustained in scrimmage a few days before and with seven men playing their first intercollegiate game for Oberlin, the outlook was anything but promising, but the Crimson and Gold fought off their opponents evenly the first half. Forward passes won out for the opposition, however, as they opened up in the third quarter, and as a result pushed over three touchdowns before the final gun barked. The local forward wall, which was supposed to be the weak link in the team's strength, surpassed the spectators' hopes and turned in a bang-up performance, but the pass defense cracked, losing the hard fought battle by a score much larger than the relative strengths merited.

Oberlin 13—Marietta 7

Oberlin and Marietta battled the following week on a gridiron where the mercury was hovering around 90 degrees throughout the contest. Marietta started off with a bang and pushed over a score in the first five minutes of play and likewise sent over the extra point. Things looked bad until Oberlin woke up, and pulling one off-tackle play after another the Yeomen smashed their way over the Marietta zero stripe, Smith carrying the pigskin, but failed to make good the extra counter. In the last quarter, Sams plunged for the winning tally, and to put the game on ice, Brickley heaved another forward to Ruth for the thirteenth point. Bill Correll intercepted another pass just before the final gun and raced 65 yards only to be tackled on the opposing five yard line, without time to shove over the third Oberlin touchdown of the day.

Rochester 2—Oberlin 0

After playing even ball for three quarters, Rochester beat out Oberlin in its third game of the season here by virtue of a safety when Sams' kick was blocked over the Oberlin goal line. Tichnor, Rochester center, rushed through for the block and Sams fell on the ball. Bill Correll looked good for the Crimson and Gold, tearing off one long run after another. Frank Barry, stellar Oberlin half-back, wrenched his knee in this game, putting himself on the bench for the remainder of the season. Oberlin never seriously threatened the Rochester goal, reaching the fourteen yard line once.

Reserve. The Red Cats were held to a 2-0 score at half time, but after the intermission, the local line cracked and Eddie Finnigan, the God of University Circle, went wild with frequent end runs and forward passes. In the closing minutes of the final quarter, Hank Sams raced 90 yards with an intercepted pass giving the crowd a thrill, and Brickley tossed to Cassidy for the extra point. Jack Kennedy, veteran Oberlin tackle, played his last game of the season here, having dislocated his knee.

Wooster 6—Oberlin 0

Wooster was clearly outplayed throughout the first half by the local squad, but Oberlin slipped after that and let Pryor of the Scots through for the winning tally in the final quarter after Wooster had staged a steady 40 yard march down the field. Sams' punting was spectacular for the Yeomen; by virtue of this, Oberlin was able to work the ball well up into the Wooster territory (to the five yard line at one time) but lacked the punch to put it over.

Oberlin 7—Allegheny 6

A hard fought battle at Meadville, Pa. was won by the Oberlin team 7-6. For the first time this year, Oberlin scored before their opponents. After Brickley had intercepted an Allegheny pass, and then had thrown a pass successfully to Dean Ruth, placing the ball in scoring position, Sams went off tackle for the 6 points. Another pass, Brickley to Ruth, scored what proved to be the winning point, in the try for extra point. In the third period Waite, star Allegheny end and captain, nabbed a long pass in the end-zone, but the kick for extra point was low. From then on, Oberlin played smart defensive ball, and kept the oval out of danger until the gun barked, ending the game.

Denison 8—Oberlin 0

Yeoman fumbles won the game for Denison the following week 8-0 though Spear, Denison luminary, was held fairly well. In the second quarter, Brickley's punt was blocked in the end-zone giving Denison their first two points and then in the fourth period, after another fumble, Denison recovered on the Oberlin 3 yard line from which point Winsor went over, deciding the game.

Case 14—Oberlin 0

Case came down for the final game of the season expecting to score a point a minute on the weaker Oberlin eleven. The Yeomen put up a real fight however, on a field covered with two inches of snow and at the half the score stood Case 7, Oberlin 0. It looked like a moral victory for Oberlin when a Case back got away for a long run in the final quarter, being run out of bounds on the Oberlin 2. Samuelson (who incidentally scored all 14 of the visitors' points) carried the ball over from there. Brickley, operated upon a few days before for appendicitis, was out of the game along with the other three "knee-cripples", but Sams' punting was consistently good and the other backs showed up well, especially Ruth. Joe Fiorito and Hank Sams were the only men to play their final game for the Alma Mater.

At the annual banquet held at The Pines Inn, Dean Ruth was elected captain for 1933 and 16 varsity "O's" were awarded. The recipients included: Captain Barker, Sams, Barry, Kennedy, Ruth, Shaw, Brown, Edwards, Morse, Berry, Whitmer, Brickley, Correll, Smith, Woodward, and Hinz.

Coach Butler's Crimson and Gold basketball five opened its season against Toledo University on January 2. With five letter men in the starting line up, things looked promising, but Toledo emerged victorious in a hectic battle 30-29. Barker aggravated an old knee injury during the course of this game and as a result spent the remainder of the season on the bench. Yoakam also sustained a slight injury.

The following evening the local boys pushed on to Detroit with Brown and Adams taking the places vacated the night before by Barker and Yoakam. The team proved unbeatable and with Spangler and Smith leading the scoring the quintet won handily from the automobile city team 43-35. All the regulars, together with Strong, Allensworth and Lampson, scored freely throughout the fracas.

"YOAK" YOAKAM

He could rise to the occasion

Oberlin's opening game on the home floor was a heartbreaker and was lost to Hiram 28-26. The Hiram boys, out for revenge for a similar defeat handed them last year by the Yeomen, came to town with blood in their eye, and after sending many of the Oberlin regulars out on fouls pushed on to the hard earned victory.

The Marietta team was the next to invade Warner gym and the locals, smarting under the defeat of a week before, were in there to do or die and consequently clicked for the first time of the year, sending the southern Ohio team home to think over a 34-19 wallop. Yoakam twinkled for Coach Butler's men this time, dropping in five field goals and two fouls for a total of twelve points. Thirteen men, including the crippled Barker, saw action against Marietta.

The following Tuesday, Akron University played host to Oberlin in the mammoth Goodyear gym in the rubber city. In spite of the fact that Akron won 38-30, Bunny Spangler was high scorer of the game with 12 markers to his credit. The diminutive forward also looked good on the defensive—in fact he was all over the floor at once. In short there was "just too much height and weight under the baskets for Oberlin to do anything outstanding" as one of the players commented afterwards.

Back on the home floor once again, Oberlin tried her best to break into the winning column again in a fast game against Muskingum, but it just couldn't be done and the Crimson outfit lost another tough battle, 28-23. The score was see-saw most of the way, but the Muskies finally broke away in the closing minutes and clinched several baskets in a row.

A highly touted Case five "conquerors of Reserve" was the next opponent on the Yeomen's schedule. Oberlin journeyed to Cleveland with plenty of fight, trying to forget the fact that newspapers everywhere had declared Case would have an easy time with her old time rival; the Brown and White were just too tough, however, and Oberlin came home under a 27-21 defeat. Need it be added the Case game was no set-up for the Clevelanders?

"ROBBIE" STRONG

He had inspiration

Denison, that powerful Buckeye conference team from Granville, came up to pay Oberlin a call the following week, and Coach Butler's proteges showed their opponents a real display of basketball "as she is played." Starting out with a bang, the Crimson five never let up once throughout the whole affair, and when the smoke cleared away, Denison was holding the proverbial paper satchel to the tune of 48-31. When the varsity trotted to the showers the score stood at 48-25. Coach Butler used every man in a uniform, and could have called upon the cheerleaders to play for all the chance Denison had of overcoming the tremendous lead.

Following this successful stand on their home floor, the Oberlin quint took their annual eastern trip starting out on the following Thursday. That night Oberlin ran up against some real competition and lost a tough battle to Syracuse 46-30. The winners had no trouble and used most of their squad at different stages throughout the game. The next night, Colgate, who later walked all over Penn State, had a hard time in downing the local boys, but finally succeeded 39-31. If Oberlin had displayed the brand of ball of which they were capable there would have been no doubt as to the probability of an Oberlin victory. That Saturday night Oberlin met Hamilton and succeeded in saving the trip from being totally in the debit columns when she easily submerged Hamilton 43-36. This victory gave them new life for the hard battle they had to play with Reserve on the following Saturday.

Men in action.

'Twas said before the game with Western Reserve that the Cleveland team would probably not be forced to even use her varsity against that "weak-sister Oberlin team", but as everyone present at that game learned and remembers (who could ever forget it?), Reserve won the game in about the luckiest way possible. Leading for 37 of the scheduled 40 minutes of that memorable game, Oberlin cracked finally and Finnigan (idol of University Circle) dropped in a slop-shot to put his outfit in the lead for what turned out to be the winning bucket, 33-31. All we can say is what a game and that the Yeomen clearly outplayed their age-old rivals every minute of the time.

Wooster had been called "the other tough game" on Oberlin's schedule this year but the good playing of the local five stayed with Oberlin during the week and they handed the Scots a real surprise when they went to Wooster the following Saturday and won handily 34-29. True enough, the game was even until late in the second half, but led by co-captain Joe Smith who accounted for 14 points himself, the Oberlin aggregation slowly but surely edged away from their adversaries and won out.

By the time the last game rolled around, that with Ohio Wesleyan, the gym was packed with fans ready to see a real battle, in spite of the fact that Wesleyan boasted a tall, fast club which had lost but a few close games all year. The Yeomen led the Bishops 21-18 at half time, but in a tussle which more closely resembled football than basketball, Wesleyan crept up and passed the locals during the course of the second half and took the game by a 33-27 score. This was the last game for Captains Smith and Spangler, Brown, and Laird. Joe Smith was high scorer for Oberlin with 12 points, Spangler second with 8.

1932 SOCCER

Led by Captain John Brown at the goalie position, Oberlin's soccer team opened its 1932 season successfully by downing Western Reserve Academy team 7-0. Things looked rosy for the Yeomen and it began to look like another winning soccer combination for Oberlin this year. A tough Lorain United team, composed of older and more experienced men, offered real competition for Oberlin in the next game, and a 1-1 tie was the result. Not satisfied with beating the W. R. Academy 7-0, the Yeomen went on to rout the University itself 10-0 in the following game. The high spot on the schedule came the next Saturday when the Oberlin squad visited Columbus long enough to hand the Ohio State team a 2-1 setback. Coming from behind in the last few seconds, the Crimson and Gold scored two goals to give the Columbus athletes a real lesson in the technique of the game. Coach Willbond's men lost a heartbreaker to the Lorain Uniteds in a return engagement the next week, when the Lorainites eeked through a lone goal to win 1-0. In another return game, this time with Western Reserve University, the locals once more emerged victorious by a 4-1 score.

1933 SWIMMING

The competition was just too tough for the Yeomen splashers this year, and the short end of the score was their fate in each of the five contests.

The first meet of the season was held at Crane pool with Case, Oberlin losing, 47-28. The Crimson dropped an uneven battle to Wooster the next week at Wooster 52-23. Reserve was the next invader of the local pool, and Oberlin sank, 48-27. The next week, Wooster again took over the local boys, this time in a close, well fought battle, 40-35. The last meet of the season was held in Cleveland where the Yeomen journeyed only to be submerged by the fast Case outfit again, 48-27.

Varsity letters in swimming were inaugurated this year, with Captain Brown, Fisher, Correll, Murray and Bonnell receiving the awards.

1932 CROSS COUNTRY

Coach Kinsey's cross country men journeyed to Delaware for their first meet on October 15 and turned in a good performance in tying the strong Ohio Wesleyan team 28-28. Wesleyan ruled a decided favorite before the meet, but Oberlin, living up to its strong cross country teams of the past, turned the trick and held the Bishops to a tie. The next Friday at New Concord, Muskingum fell under the onslaught of the local harriers to the tune of 17-38 and Oberlin looked once again like a conference champion. However, hopes for repeating their last year's conference leadership faded when, on the next Saturday, Wooster came over for a set-to and left the Yeomen holding the bag.

Wooster was second with 32 and Muskingum third. Just as an afterthought, after the climax had been reached the week before, Kinsey's men routed the Case team at Dill Field the following Saturday 15-45. 1932 GOLF

The Crimson and Gold Golf team, composed of McCloskey, Marquardt, Wilkins, Bohrer and Dudley, began its 1932 season with a decisive victory over Mount Union at the Oberlin Country Club, by a 15-1 score. The next match with Ashland proved to be a tough assignment, and the local squad withered, 15-3. Then, with vengeance in their hearts, the Yeomen retaliated the next week by dropping Kenyon 10-8. Mount Union turned the tables on Oberlin in the next match held at Alliance and sent the local niblick wielders home nursing an 11-5 bump. Ashland came through again in great style in the following match and succeeded in out-putting the Crimson and Gold in their 13-5 win.

Oberlin's track team journeyed to Detroit to open its 1932 season with an indoor meet, only to be turned back by a strong outfit from the Fifth City 60 1/3 to 43 2/3, but according to Coach Kinsey, this was no indication of the team's strength as was shown later in the season. Spangler in the pole vault and Cook in the 880 produced the only first places of the day for the locals.

Oberlin scored nine firsts, five seconds and three thirds to annex an informal meet held at Dill Field April 23. Though no point score was kept, the Crimson and Gold were well out in front all the way and a pleasing outlook for the season was established.

In what proved to be an upset meet, Reserve came to Oberlin and gave the locals the first defeat in twenty-five years, $67 \frac{1}{3}$ to $63 \frac{2}{3}$. Spangler, McClain, and the Gaige brothers provided the only firsts for Oberlin, while Ward and Keeley looked good for the Clevelanders. McClain's toss of the shot was sensational and Brickley, though not in winning form, forced the high jump way up.

Oberlin 75½—Wooster 55½

Bill Gaige broke the previous broad jump record by leaping 22 feet $5\frac{3}{4}$ inches, Hall copped both dashes, Ashe, Cook, McClain, and Spangler won their events to pile up points enough to submerge Wooster $75\frac{1}{2}$ to $55\frac{1}{2}$. The team looked good as a whole. Coach Kinsey definitely pointed his strength toward the Big Six meet later on.

Hall's victory in the 100 was the only other Oberlin first place and contrary to custom, the winner was decided by the mass total of seconds and thirds piled up instead of by virtue of firsts won. The Oberlin team made a pleasing appearance as a well balanced organization, scoring points in every event except the shot put, 440 and broad jump.

With only six days of practice behind them, Coach Throner's baseball protégés lost a tough opening game at Ashland 12-10. Giddings and Shollenberger were the local batteries and aided by slugging from their teammates almost subdued the Ashlanders, but the latter made their bingles count and edged out finally by two markers.

Hillsdale 6—Oberlin 3

Returning to the home field, Oberlin put up a good battle against the huskies from Hillsdale, Michigan but just couldn't come through and lost out 6-3 in a closely contested match. Voellmig turned in a good performance at second base for the Thronermen but the Michigan pitching was too strong.

Oberlin 18—Akron 3

The University of Akron visited Oberlin on the next Saturday only to be turned away by an 18-3 rout handed them by the local squad. The local batsmen, led by Shollenberger, played havoc with the opposing pitching staff. The fielding improved greatly, as well, over last week's game.

Ashland 7—Oberlin 0

Oberlin's batting, which looked so good against Ashland earlier in the season in spite of the loss of the game, was held absolutely hitless the next week by the Ashland leading hurler. The game ended in a 7-0 win for the Ashland men.

Toledo 4—Oberlin 3

In a hectic battle lasting 14 innings, the Throner coached aggregation fell at the last minute and lost a real heartbreaker to the University of Toledo by a 4-3 count. It was a real exhibition of baseball and a tough battle to lose, but Oberlin looked good in spite of it all.

Hamilton 6—Oberlin 3

Opening their annual Eastern trip in Clinton, New York, Oberlin lost to Hamilton College 6-3. Giddings and Shollenberger were the batteries for the Yeomen. Gaining 7 hits to Oberlin's 4, the victory was well merited by the Clinton boys.

Syracuse 12—Oberlin 0

Encountering a squad of giants from Syracuse the next day, Oberlin couldn't find itself and fell before a barrage of doubles and triples and journeyed on after a terrible 12-0 defeat. Black, Syracuse pitcher starred throughout the game as far as defense was concerned and his teammates' bats supplied the necessary offense.

Rochester 3—Oberlin 1

Atlee Shilling, pitching his first "start" turned in a remarkable performance against Rochester, holding them to 7 bingles, but the Film City bats outspoke those of the Yeomen and Oberlin lost 3-1 in the last in the series of Eastern games.

Wooster 7—Oberlin 1

Bill Voellmig's circuit clout in the eighth inning saved the day for the local squad against Wooster as far as keeping Oberlin in the scoring columns but the experienced Wooster team pitched and batted its way to a 7-1 win over the Throner men the following week. Giddings and Shollenberger were the Crimson and Gold batters.

Muskingum 7—Oberlin 2

The Crimson and Gold baseball outfit closed an unsuccessful campaign during a blistering exam period—losing to the classy Muskingum nine by the score of 7-2. Seen as a losing club from the very beginning of the season, Coach Throner with the cooperation from the players themselves molded the squad into shape and certainly with a few breaks they deserved and didn't get, the boys would have come through with at least a 50-50 season. Ten letters were awarded the team at the annual "O" Club banquet at which time "Tige" Lighter was voted captain for 1933.

1932 TENNIS

After winning two warm-up matches from Lima and Hillsdale, Oberlin's racqueteers mowed down Kenyon and Wooster in easy fashion. On the western trip Hillsdale again fell victim, but Western State and Michigan State took our measure. Returning home the team vanquished Kenyon and Muskingum, then bowed to a smooth University of Michigan team. The season was formally closed at Wooster where the locals again showed their superiority. Mark and Ward carried the squad through a tough schedule while the sophomore contingent's improvement pointed to successful seasons ahead.

Ohio Conference Tourney

On May 21-22 Oberlin was host to the schools in the Ohio Conference for the annual tennis tournament, each school sending two singles and one doubles entrants. Mark of Oberlin won his way to the finals after a hard-fought match with Smigel of Case in the semi-final, meeting Hotz of Heidleberg, the showman of the tourney. After dropping the first set 3-6, Mark swept through, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3 to give Oberlin the trophy. In the doubles Dyke and Smigel carried off the honors for Case.

Ward receives singles trophy.

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

Five hundred eighteen men, or 82 per cent of those enrolled at Oberlin College, participated in some form of intramural sport during the last year. Twenty-six different sports were participated in, nineteen leagues were formed, twenty-eight championships awarded. A smoothly-run Festival, attesting to superior departmental organization and exhibiting real accomplishments, concluded the fifth year of intramural competition at Oberlin under the guidance of Dr. Nichols.

Warrior maidens in a well matched battle overcame the white-clad sailors in the Oberlin co-eds' annual baseball classic at Galpin Field on June 6th. The Army, in military blue, did honor to West Point by conquering their rivals by a score of nine to seven, the closest score in four years. Brilliant pitching and accurate throwing and catching attested to the efficiency of the coach and Navy's persistent fight even when the cards seemed stacked against them demonstrated again the Oberlin brand of sportsmanship.

Nineteen thirty-three witnessed another successful season of basketball for women in Oberlin. Class practices, which began in December, showed promising material. The tumbling season ended with a final flip at the Yale-Princeton game. Stunts, comic and difficult, as well as pyramids composed the program which was put on by the squad after faithful practice during the season. Miss Edwards introduced many new tricks and helped the girls with an enthusiasm which has made advanced tumblers from several "tenderfeet."

Of the fifteen girls with regular attendance, three received numerals. This is the first year numerals have been given for tumbling.

Student Council

Being the Chancellor of the Student Exchequer, the first action by the Student Council of 1932-1933 was to minimize the cost of the Activity Fee by reducing it substantially.

Being liable for the indebtedness of all campus organizations, a new plan was submitted for the Annual Publication, the Hi-O-Hi.

Off to a good start at the very beginning of school the Council met the challenge in President Wilkins' Opening Day Address, "play the reality," by chartering a new organization, one destined to become not only state-wide but nationally known, Organized Student Voters.

Emboldened by over-stepping sacred tradition in making the annual Campus Mixer a real novel fun-frolic, a Black Masque Ball was held, with a real bier garten and salty crooked pretzels. Daring to risk all now, the cut system was poked into; the ranking system smudged out into full view; a complete reorganization of the Student Council was the final venture that paved the way to the butchering of the sacred cow in the form of a twenty-one per cent reduction in the Activity Fee—thus circumnavigating the vicious circle.

The Men's Senate acts in the interest of the male students of Oberlin and is concerned with the sponsoring and supervising of men's activities on the campus.

This year, in cooperation with the Faculty, a revised Men's Board was formed to provide a means for more efficient regulation of men's affairs. The smoking situation was discussed in conjunction with a faculty committee, leading to the later adoption of the new regulation. A definite system for the selection and promotion of cheerleaders was formulated and put into action in the Fall. Freshman-Sophomore activities were simplified and a new type of Cap Burning program attempted with success.

The men's life on the campus was definitely enriched by three entertaining stags sponsored by the Senate and held in the Men's Building. Several informal campus sings in the Fall and Spring were also well attended and enjoyed.

Since the Women's Senate is the legislative body of the Women's League, it seeks not only to enforce the regulations of the League, but also to promote a spirit of friendly cooperation among the girls in respecting the rights of others and to develop in the individual the true meaning of social responsibility.

In order that this purpose be fulfilled, meetings are held once every month under the leadership of the second Vice-President of the League. The membership includes all house presidents and representatives from all College and Conservatory classes. This representative group discusses campus problems and aims to find means of making life on the Oberlin campus more pleasant and conducive to worthwhile living. Here legislation may be changed with the approval of the Executive Board and the Joint Council.

Men's Honor Committee

This marks the end of the third successful year for the Honor System which the Oberlin Student Body accepted in 1930. That these years have been successful is plainly seen in the fact that in spite of a strong tendency to tightened administration due to the imposition of the ranking system of grades, the number of cases appearing before the committees for correction has steadily dwindled each year. The Honor Committee is becoming less and less a court for remedial and judicial functions, and is placing more and more emphasis upon the educative and preventative phases of its work. It most certainly appears that the foundation stone of a high and lasting ideal of honor has been solidly laid at Oberlin.

Women's Honor Committee

The Honor System, one of the distinctive features of Oberlin College, places each student on his honor not to cheat. Students observing cheating are expected to report the case to the Committee, or, if they think they can handle the situation better themselves, they may take the matter up directly with the offender.

Naturally, the Committee depends almost entirely on student cooperation. It, therefore, emphasizes education as its chief function, acquainting the incoming students at the very out-set with this tradition of honesty, and endeavoring to keep it alive in the whole student body.

The Conservatory Men's Board is an organization representing all men registered in the Conservatory. The duties of the board are of a social nature, encouraging the individual to participate in group activities. The Men's Board acts with the corresponding women's organization in social affairs involving both. It also sponsors conservatory participation in athletics.

Conservatory Women's Board

TOP: J. Kampmeier, A. Hyde, E. Gordinier, S. Humphrey, E. Sternberg.
FIRST: M. Mann, V. Mott, M. Andrews.

The Women's Board is composed of nine class officers, the chairman of the Conservatory counselors, the Conservatory members of the Executive Board of the Women's League, and the representative from the Y. W. C. A. Working in conjunction with the Men's Board, this group assists in planning social functions, such as the "Con Prom" and the Thanksgiving party. Its chief interest is that of encouraging Conservatory students to participate in college activities.

All of the women in the college and conservatory are members of the Women's League. This organization aims to give the women that kind of student government which is most adequate for their needs; it is interested in all women's activities and desires to promote a spirit of co-operation with the faculty in directing them.

The constitution is in the process of revision; the drawing system for dormitories has been investigated; the extension of the closing hour from 9:40 to 10:00 was obtained; and a system of "community and social responsibility" is being tried in the house governments.

Shansi Committee

TOP: C. Miller, H. Wang, W. Pyle, F. Koehler, R. Brown, H. Kline.

With increasing success, the Shansi Committee is attempting to fulfill its purpose of making the Oberlin-in-Shansi more real and vital to the campus here. The assembly talks given by the returned representatives, Clayton Miller and Adella Clark, and the frequent appearance of the former and the showing of his motion pictures to various groups aroused much interest. The visit of Ray Moyer, on leave of absence from the Shansi Agriculture Department, to the Oberlin Campus greatly strengthened the bond between the two schools.

Monthly meetings of the Committee were held, every other one taking the form of a Chinese supper. The annual breakfast was held during Commencement week for the alumni in honor of the newly chosen representatives. After much deliberation, the committee announced on Shansi Day that the ones chosen for the next two years were Gertrude Cheney and Joseph Hamilton. The speaker for the occasion was Dr. Y. Y. Tsu. The college was fortunate in having Dr. H. H. Kung, President of Oberlin-in-Shansi and special envoy of the Chinese government, here for a few days' visit.

The Young Men's Christian Association began its activities of the year with the conference at Green Springs, held in conjunction with the Y. W. C. A. and for the purpose of formulating plans of co-operation in meeting needs of the campus. One of the most important results of that conference was the unusual programs offered for vespers services, probably the most interesting of which were discussions by well known speakers on Why I Am a Jew, Why I Am Catholic and Why I Am Protestant. Another most worth-while result was the Religious Emphasis Week with Dr. Douglas Horton of Chicago leading the discussions.

The Y also sponsored a helpful program of service at the Children's Home and organized and directed the Freshman Men's Club. April 21-23 the association entertained, for the first time, the officers of the other college of Ohio organizations in their Annual Officers' Spring Training Conference.

Spring brought plans for three other innovations. It was decided that in order to give the Y a firmer existence and a greater use to the campus a part-time secretary should be hired so as to provide a continuity from year to year. Secondly, it was agreed to inaugurate an active membership idea instead of the theoretical all-inclusive arrangement which has existed for some time. Thirdly, the Y thought it important that some rooms should be found and equipped as Y lounging rooms. These innovations will, it is believed, do much to rejuvenate the Y association.

Faculty members from the Religious Interests Committee, President Wilkins, and the cabinets of the two Christian Associations met at a fall conference at Green Springs, to consider how Oberlin may provide better opportunities for religious growth among her faculty and students. The findings of this group became the year's working plan.

The activities of the Y. W. C. A. include Community Service: work with shut-ins, at the Children's Home, at the Recreation Center, and at the night school; Campus Service through "Sophomore Sisters" and the Six Weeks' Club, through the Book Exchange, and through social groups. The Study Groups include one whose project this year has been conferences with factory girls from Cleveland and Akron, the World Fellowship group and the discussion group of Freshman women. The Y. W. C. A. has also helped plan Vespers and Religious Emphasis Week.

The Forensic Union began its active season early this year with a number of extension debates on the election and campaign issues. Later it swung into its round of extension and intercollegiate debates on the question of Limitation of Income and Inheritance, and later on whether or not War Debts should be cancelled.

Both men and women's teams went south into Washington during Spring vacation, where they met Howard University, University of Richmond, American University, and the University of West Virginia.

Home debates were scheduled this year with Dayton, Geneva, Ohio Wesleyan, Wooster, and Howard University.

The Union had an active membership of thirty men and women, and a larger group of underclassmen participated in extension debating as well.

During the year the Oberlin Peace Society continued its work to encourage interest in international affairs and to concentrate creative effort for the understanding and furtherance of fundamental peace issues. A presentation of the aims and purposes of the Society to the school in the fall resulted in a growth in membership to over eight hundred.

The year's program included addresses by Mr. James G. McDonald of the Foreign Policy Association, Professor Danton, Professors Wooster, Pierce, and Jameson, and meetings on timely subjects led by members of the Society. Thirteen study groups were organized to study the problems of as many different countries, and took an active part in the preparation of public meetings and the discussion at the forums after addresses. In April the Society sponsored the annual Ohio Model Assembly of the League of Nations, playing host to about twenty colleges and universities which represented the states which were members in the League.

Its third year of life finds The Olympian occupying an accepted place upon the campus as the acknowledged medium for student literary expression. A centennial issue in June, which is to include a resume of much of the work of previous literary magazines at Oberlin, and a prize competition in February, were the high spots of the year. The prize competition resulted in three awards: to Lawrence Wakefield for the best short story; to Henry Sams for the best essay; and to Miss Jean Fitch for the best work from a new contributor. The competition was judged by Professor Jelliffe, the magazine's faculty adviser, Mrs. Oscar Jaszi, and Mr. Maynard Mack. The contributors have been, as before, undergraduates, alumni, and faculty; and the general excellence of the material submitted of a character to warrant the conclusion that The Olympian is worthily serving its dual purpose as a medium for expression and a magazine for undergraduate consumption.

After struggling along for years in the old cubby hole (apologies and condolences to the business staff), the editorial staff of the Review has been quartered at 13 N. Main St. With the acquiring of adequate space for our operations, the work of publishing the Review twice a week has been more efficiently and fairly divided.

The policy of the Review during the last nine months has been to interpret student opinion among the few and present it to the student body as a whole in an effort to obtain concerted criticism and action.

In response to the student opinion that "Oberlin is dead on Saturday nights", the Review has sponsored a series of All-College dances throughout the winter months with a gratifying approval from all sources.

In its open criticism of the ranking system of grading the Review was supported by an overwhelming majority of the student body in a test poll. For a while the flood of letters to the Vox Pop column averaged fifty protests a week. The final major endeavor of the Review was the conduction of a text book cost investigation in which the price of books in Oberlin was found to be in line with costs at all colleges.

The aim of Le Cercle Français is to provide an opportunity to any student who is interested in French to hear and speak the language regularly. Musical programs, plays, lectures, and informal games are presented at the meetings, at which only French is spoken. Here the students meet the different members of the French department and work under their direction in play production. It has been the custom for several years for the French department to sponsor the presentation of a French film. "A Nous la Liberte", directed by Rene Clair, the outstanding French producer, was shown in February.

In 1930 the first group of twenty Miller Men came to Oberlin "to give the women competition." For the first time in years, men outnumbered the women on the Freshman Honor List. The process of importing foreign competition has continued each year, and by next fall, there will be eighty Miller Men on the campus. To bring together the common interests within the group, the Miller Men's Club, named after Amos C. Miller, donor of the scholarships, was formed. Meetings are held during the winter months in the West Parlors of the M. B. Speakers are invited to present current subjects to the group for informal discussion and debate. Social activities are indulged in after the meetings. In the early fall and late spring meetings are held at Oberlin Colony on Lake Erie where sand and water are mixed with the usual run of gritty subjects for discussion.

The programs this year have been so arranged as to afford every member a chance to show her taste and preference in literature, either poetry or prose. The first semester was devoted to the reading of original short stories, serials, and verse, as well as the reading of poems by favorite poets, mostly contemporary. Throughout the latter part of the year, a study was made of various authors, and attempts to imitate their style were made by members of the group. For the past two years Aelioian has been awarded the cup at the Inter-Society Banquet.

The social activities comprised a theatre party to see "Cyrano de Bergerac", a "rec" night with Phi Alpha Phi, and the June "Love Feast", in addition to social meetings once a month, at which Bridge and refreshments were in order.

L. L. S. may have been the first literary society founded, but its programs this year have been far from Victorian. After studying short stories, each member attempted one, and the best were kept for the L. L. S. year book. And so with poetry, plays, and essays. Book reviews from time to time kept the club in touch with the "best sellers of the day." And guest speakers brought added interest in special subjects.

And then, not every moment was spent in such serious pursuits. Bridge parties, and delicious teas by candle light, along with the opportunity for much talk, more or less literary, of course, occupied some of the Monday nights. Too, the suddenly popular jig-saw puzzle made a particularly pleasant interim in literary society schedules one night when the Alumnae entertained.

Nor was the club's rich store of traditions forgotten on such occasions as initiation and the annual Love Feast.

With the purpose in mind of developing an intelligent knowledge of recent literature as well as of gaining pleasure from the process, Phi Alpha Phi has had a lively and interesting program consisting primarily of modern novels, drama, and poetry, but also including original stories and informal discussions of literary methods. Three meetings had as their central feature the reading of an installment of a continued story which one girl started and passed on to another.

The social program was likewise varied and came in the nature of a steak roast early in the fall, a "Rec" night with Aelioian, and several social meetings pleasantly scattered throughout the year. The high-spots of the season were the theater party to Cleveland to see Walter Hampden in "Cyrano de Bergerac" and the annual June "Love Feast."

"The play's the thing" was the decision of Sigma Gamma when the society made its choice of a program this year. A study of modern drama and dramatists inspired some of the members to the production of a play. With a combination of interests and ingenuity, harmonicas were made to produce excellent saxophone music, spools became chessmen, ropes became garden hose, and all manner of things were transformed into necessary properties. Lest staging tendencies should eclipse the true purpose of the dramatic program, members attempted playwriting the second semester.

Social functions included an October firelight party for guests, a Christmas party, the inter-society banquet, and the "Love Feast" which the alumnae attended as guests of the present society.

Cosmopolitan Club

"Above All Nations Is Humanity." So runs the motto of the Cosmopolitan Club. "ABOVE means on top of, first, supreme; not just half-way up, not luke warm; not neutral, self-satisfied, but definitely superior to relative things. ALL NATIONS mean all people, everywhere, all the time; not just one particular nation, not a specific race, but all mankind. IS HUMANITY means persons, not things; that is, personality, not property. It signifies justice, unselfishness, and love among the inhabitants of the world."

Believing that the ultimate benefits to human world problems will be achieved in proportion to the comradeship achieved in such societies as the Cosmopolitan Club, the Oberlin chapter serves as a medium through which may be made such contacts as are conducive to a better and more sympathetic understanding and a more profitable mutual fellowship. The members—foreign and American students and faculty members and their wives—are sworn to be willing and desirous to do their share in making these contacts within the Cosmopolitan Club everything that they should be.

The Oberlin Cosmopolitan Club is but one of a string of chapters scattered all over the United States. The Syracuse University Men's Cosmopolitan Club, organized in 1907, is the oldest chapter. The movement has been so popular that every American college or university having a handful of foreign students can boast of a local Cosmopolitan Club. That such a club, besides creating friendly relationship between the native and visiting students, draws the latter to become interested and take a part in the college activities is an undeniable fact.

It is to be hoped that out of the personal friendship cultivated within the Cosmopolitan Club may grow a larger, all-embracing world fellowship, thereby bringing to fruition the fundamental principle that "Above All Nations Is Humanity."

The public productions of this Hi-O-Hi year have been Shakespeare's "Love's Labor Lost" and Pirandello's "Six Characters In Search Of An Author." The former play was an outdoor production, executed under the direction of Mr. Shaver and Mr. Taylor. The conventional character of the Shakespearian play did not lend itself to the novel treatment accorded the latter. The production of Pirandello's work was experimental, intending to show that the significance of art cannot be limited to the superficial aspects of the play, but must include the underlying aesthetic aspects of human feelings, emotions, and desires. It was a convincing example of a new dramatic insight in Oberlin. This play was chosen and directed by Mr. Jelliffe.

At home nowhere, handicapped everywhere, the technical staff of the Association has in no small measure contributed to the success of these two plays.

We live in dreams of the future when there will be Brief concerts, serenades, and a "Rec" nite, each preceded by many weeks of rehearsing, featured the year's program of the most active Freshman Glee Club of recent years. With the view towards these activities, each group practiced separately, the women on Thursday evenings and the men on Wednesdays, putting the best part of their enthusiasm into singing. Selected by competitive try-out, the members of each unit instituted a special attendance system in order to insure regular attendance at rehearsals. Since it is from this organization that many of the members of Varsity Glee Clubs are selected, the year's efforts were bent chiefly in preparatory work. The outstanding success of the organization this year is due largely to the direction and supervision of Florence Pfeil and Henry Ready.

The Mathematics Club affords an excellent opportunity for those interested in the subject to gain a more intimate knowledge of some aspects not generally discussed in the classroom. This year, under the leadership of Miss Marie Johnson, the club stressed in its programs mathematical theories and their practical application. Papers, reports, and discussions were given by students at the regular semi-monthly meetings on Friday afternoons. Of special interest was the lecture given in February by Prof. W. G. Simon of Western Reserve University.

The social activities of the year included occasional informal gatherings, the annual Christmas party in Shepherd lounge, and the spring banquet which regularly brings the year to a close.

The hill towns of Kentucky and West Virginia have subsided once more to their normal state of existence, and the moon shines again on the banks of the Ohio River, but in the heart of many a young mountaineer in that district there lingers yet the memory of thirty-five young women who came riding into town one morning last spring. There followed a mad, mysterious rush to the post office, curious trips of exploration into the musty local shops, a concert in the evening, and then sudden departure, leaving in its wake a path strewn with crushed youthful passions. Home and practice concerts, or even the Wirkler yell may be forgotten, but Kentucky moonshine, never.

Well, it was a great year, wasn't it? Remember that trip to Cleveland that we had all planned, but didn't take? Remember that long Christmas trip through the Middle West so carefully charted and planned, those long tiring bus rides, those small town hotels with only cold water in the spigots and straw ticks for mattresses, none of which we experienced? You must remember the practice sessions we held at least, and even that practice concert in a small town near Oberlin. But we can't say that we have not gained something from this year's program. We are sure that the girls' houses noticed an improvement in the strains that were wafted up to their windows in the still of the spring evenings by the various component sections of this year's organization.

Oberlin Band history began in 1889 with the formation of the Aeolus Cornet Club, boasting of seven members. Eight years later, the "Brass Band of Holy Rushers" made its appearance, an aggregation that from all reports was no more musical than its name indicated. In 1902 there was a picture in the Hi-O-Hi of a 20 piece band, and from then till 1921 the Oberlin Band maintained a stable place in campus activities. In 1921 Professor Frederick was put in charge, to conduct the Band and to give practical instruction on band instruments as well. Two football trips and a spring concert were added to the schedule the following year. In 1924 a constitution was

The orchestra's first public appearance was on November 8. Their debut created such an ecstasy in the soul of Professor Hall that he wrote as follows for the Alumni Magazine: "On one of the Wednesday evening recitals this past month the string section of the Conservatory Orchestra played Bloch's Concerto Grosse under the direction of Mr. Maurice Kessler. This was undoubtedly the best performance we have heard from the orchestra."

After this auspicious beginning, the orchestra was kept busy playing accompaniments during the rest of the year; first, for the Messiah, and then for six lesser prophets in their senior recitals and commencement concerts.

Thus ends one of the busiest and most successful years in the long history of the Conservatory Orchestra—an organization which has fittingly celebrated the Oberlin Centenary by increased excellence of work. Much credit is due Professor Kessler, who has directed for so, these many years.

Though offering a type of music that does not appeal to the popular taste, the A Capella Choir completed another season of dignified and impressive public appearances this year that would do credit to any professional organization of its nature. Several concerts in Cleveland, one in Elyria, and another in Amherst completed the year's out-of-town itinerary. The most important local appearances were the home concert on May sixth and participation in chapel exercises at frequent intervals. Not only were the public appearances pleasureable to the members, but invaluable musical experience was gained from participation in this type of voice organization.

Baldwin

TOP: C. Ebenhart, G. Coven, A. McLeod, P. Griffey, K. Forbes, R. Morrow, D. Fuller, E. Gilbert, H. Simon, R. Brooks, C. Street, L. Lyons.

FOURTH: J. Harden, E. Hamm, J. Dike, E. Herum, C. M. Guerry, R. Binning, C. Ide, D. Shoemaker, J. Cooper, N. Frost, E. Bowen, M. Howell, D. Haworth.

THIRD: E. Johnson, M. Sifton, L. Schoonover, E. Wolkoff, M. Helvenston, G. Hug, M. A. Zeleny, H. Spain, H. Van Dyne, D. Burd, M. Foltz, M. Fowles, V. Brown, J. Sturdivant.

SECOND: H. Grant, M. Tyler, R. Foltz, E. Densberger, H. Strawbridge, M. Brecht, Mrs. Seaman, L. Rothwell, A. Woods, E. Phelps, E. Blackington, M. Rentschler.

FIRST: P. Jones, H. Wilbur, C. Olds, W. Tufts, R. Brink, G. Scott, J. Abbott, F. Roberts, R. Adams, H. Larzelere.

The Baldwin year started auspiciously with the high-spirited initiation of the eleven freshmen, the house-rec held in the house, the hare-and hound chase and Puritan dinner at Thanksgiving, the Christmas breakfast with its many old carols and lighted candles, and the week before exams during which the women showed Priscilla three times in three days and were successful each time, to the shame of our stalwart men.

The House dance, for which Baldwin assumed the appearance of the White House on March 4th, was the high-water mark of the second semester, for it is an old story concerning the rest of the events at a women's dormitory during spring-time. So we say farewell.

Barrows

TOP: K. Fukushima, M. Heiser, C. Mitchener, E. Lyon, D. Reavy, W. DeVeny, M. Mapes, W. Coplin, V. Mott.

THIRD: K. Gates, C. Ober, M. Pardee, B. Simmons, R. Pardee, J. McCullough, F. Rowe, H. Wenzel.

SECOND: E. Holz, C. Snow, F. Pfeil, M. Mann, Mrs. Nipps, V. Shelton, A. Leicht, E. Ashe.

FIRST: A. Roe, R. Smith, P. Dumke, J. Mearns.

Wouldn't President John Henry Barrows be surprised to see and hear all the activity that is being carried on today in the Southern Colonial mansion he built in 1900! This picturesque home with its wide sweeping lawns framed with dignified elms was acquired by the Conservatory in 1916 and since that year has been the center of many social functions. In the fall there are the Conservatory faculty reception and the Freshman garden party, and in the spring the "Lilac Tea". The old brick fireplace, the swing from the great elm, and the lone rustic bench in the garden can tell of more intimate incidents in the life of Barrows.

Churchill

TOP: M. Carr, A. Plumb, M. Miller, M. Gold, C. Good, E. Cutler, H. Russell.
SECOND: I. Clark, D. Heron, M. Gogolick, I. Edmunds, B. Gardner, M. Atkins, G. Hoornstra.
FIRST: E. Nevitt, M. Nickel, Mrs. Fleming, C. Heberding, V. Wolfe.

Although the weeping-willow tree in front of Churchill is there no longer to cast its romantic spell over dreamy-eyed couples, or to tempt stray "window-peepers," anxious for a glance of the proverbially luxurious and gay life in a women's dorm, there is now a new diversion for "peepers" and couples alike, in the form of the newly acquired radio which now graces the parlor.

Besides the harmonious (?) sounds issuing from the radio, the Churchillites also have a goodly share of "con harmony," shrill cheers from the women's gym, and, last but not least, terrifyingly loud tr-r-r-r-r's of the "squelch" bell.

Long may they blend their discordant tunes in a rhapsody in crimson and gold!

Cranford

TOP: N. Houston, F. Eckford, A. Schneider, R. Strong.
FOURTH: M. Neff, D. Eckler, V. Burrett, I. Luse, L. Milz, H. Welcker, J. James, A. Donat, E. Swing, B. Kuehn, M. Lewis.
THIRD: H. Gipson, E. Bahne, L. Jones, H. Vradenburg, A. Cressman, L. Bushyager, E. Curry, M. MacMillan, J. Humphrey, M. Cook, M. Stevens, J. Castle, M. Isaly, E. Bligh.
SECOND: H. Ledger, D. Fries, R. Clark, D. Stone, M. Bucher, S. Lindquist, B. Brucher, E. Waterbury, K. Weist, M. Green, J. Cox, C. Anderson.
FIRST: R. Morse, C. Porter, M. Monroe, M. Cooper, J. Harger, G. Jorgensen, E. Hook, G. Biro, H. Peter, M. Resnikoff, T. Ramsey, R. Galambos, E. Allan, E. Ramsey.

Cranford is unique. No other house can boast such a delightfully long and scenic route to Peters Hall. Where else can be found such a spacious backyard where minds lightly turn to thoughts of love? Evening brings soft lights and sweet music and dancing after dinner to the tune of "Honey, Baby."

Nor must we forget the sleigh ride, a memorable evening of tussels in the snow, returning cold and wet for sandwiches and cocoa in front of the fire. This is suggestive of the informality which always pervades the house, "Do Not Disturb" signs are no barriers to get-togethers where everything is discussed from heredity and environment to the latest fashions.

Dascomb

TOP: S. Miner, E. Wadsworth, C. Boyd, B. Rendelman, D. Wharton, D. Reinhart, J. MacGinnis, E. Gillett, V. Coleman, M. Beckwith, G. Walkingsick, L. Baughman, F. Miller.
THIRD: C. Wegner, M. Burrowes, J. Porter, E. Crow, M. Krebs, M. Beck, J. Stratton, F. Hughes, M. Fairfield, M. Tourt, M. Emerine, M. Patterson, M. Schram, A. Brokenburr.
SECOND: E. Dye, H. Hendershot, A. Bennett, N. Brokenburr, G. Gott, M. de Schweinitz, F. Fitch, Mrs. Pelton, C. Grover, K. Kibler, M. Brown, A. Monks, E. Robbins.
FIRST: B. Green, B. Dawson, H. Bittinger, B. Freeman, E. McSweeney, E. Wright, L. Hermanson, M. Moodey, R. Brown, S. Oliver, A. Woodward.

Many threats of murder have been issued in Dascomb this year. Articles on the dining room tables were constantly being disturbed; the davenport was torn to pieces; the living rooms were always in disorder, not to mention the sun-parlor. "Oh, to get my hands around the neck of that—" was often heard. Unfortunately, however, the cat (named Stan-Pat after "Stan" Bennett and "Pat" Thomas) was dear to a few, and thus the threats could not be carried out.

Speaking of the sun-parlor—drop around sometime during exams, not for the tea, but to hear the conversations carried on by a few of our many intellects.

Ellis

TOP: A. Talling, M. Reinhart, K. Eide, R. Falck, A. Blodgett.
SECOND: M. Wulff, H. Pasch, G. Swanson, L. Mason, E. Beougher.
FIRST: S. Hoffman, H. Richards, M. Corder.

The old saying goes, "Good things come in small packages." Ellis cottage illustrates this very well. There is never a dull day here. Sight singing, keyboard quizzes, bridge tournaments, jig-saw puzzles, fudge-making, spreads, and ping pong all contribute to the joy of living here. In our midst are many notables—singers, pianists, a cellist, a flutist, a violinist, an organist, and several conductors, to say nothing of our up and coming drum major. There is still another line in which Ellis excels—namely, that of talking. Even our famous West Virginian with her sunny southern drawl can out-talk almost anyone. Holidays are always marked by gay activities in which each member of the house participates. Almost invariably our house matron volunteers to help us decide on refreshments by offering to bake angel food cakes.

Fairchild

TOP: M. Westfall, E. Loomis, F. Eddy, D. Clapp, D. Poste.
SECOND: C. DeGant, N. Frost, R. Hall, R. Brenner, E. Harding, M. Wolcott.
FIRST: R. Groff, M. Antico, Mrs. Lichliter, H. McGue.

Small, yet outstanding on the campus, quiet, yet at times rather ecstatic with spring or what-have-you-fever (as some of its neighbors can testify), Fairchild is quite "all right" as a dorm. The Fairchildren can be seen, in their full glory, enroute at high speed toward Baldwin at any meal time. Or, perhaps of an evening the Fairchildren can be—well-understood—trying to make the best of the one parlor, the front steps, or the side porch (if the weather is not too wintry).

And is there any other college house that can boast of a fire-extinguisher in every room, two radios, a lively piano, a Vic of the old school, and a live mascot?

Grey Gables

TOP: D. Reisner, M. Crain, M. Conlon, J. MacGregor, H. Morrison, M. Brown, D. Ellis, M. Whallon, A. Pfund, H. Crawford.
THIRD: D. Lane, J. Humiston, M. Collin, M. Thiessen, E. Williams, M. Baird, M. Schultz, K. Agnew, M. Widder, C. Newell, J. Griffiths.
SECOND: V. Scott, I. Harris, F. Dodge, A. Splitstone, Mrs. Dudley, E. Fletcher, P. Cornell, H. Donat, M. Kasley.
FIRST: M. Chapin, R. Gillespie, L. Peckham, J. Henderson, D. Parsons, M. Stinson.

A lone male draped over the sofa in the front room follows the adventures of Popeye in peaceful solitude, while from the dining room comes the aroma of vegetable soup and a gentle clatter of dishes. It is fifteen minutes to lunch time at the Gables.

At fourteen minutes to, the door bursts open and the first ten homecomers enter almost simultaneously, with ten more at their heels. The girls dive for the mail-heap and swarm up the stairs with their catch, while the men slam down books, take possession of the newspapers and comfortable chairs and settle down to wait, sniffing speculatively; some—for the day is mild—wander out again for a cigaret or a few moments of baseball, dodging the stream of new arrivals with practiced agility.

Grey Gables

TOP: E. Whiting, H. Poulsen, W. Pyle, J. Morse, W. McRae, L. White, E. Claffin, R. Crist.
THIRD: W. Steigely, A. Tufts, G. Twichell, W. Partridge, R. Nuckolls, A. Shilling, M. Winickoff, D. Strong, J. Welker.
SECOND: R. Maynard, P. Brown, N. Pottorf, R. Shuman, Mother Dudley, V. Weber, K. Dustman, R. Lampson.
FIRST: T. Stone, C. Jones, J. Ford, E. Lacy, H. Clapp, P. Hastings.

Now the girls are coming downstairs again, noses powdered and hair neatly combed, making for unoccupied chairs, magazines, and men. Someone has the radio going, but the piano is offering stiff competition, while the telephone, not to be outdone, shrills defiantly from time to time. The slamming of the door is accelerated. Startled out of its lethargy, the smoldering fire flares up in welcome.

The bell! Three minutes to go! The last scamper of feet on the staircase, the last patting of hair before the hall mirror, the last glance at the newspaper before it goes slithering to the floor—then Gables surges into the dining room in less time than it takes for the last notes of the piano to reverberate into silence.

The door, left ajar, swings slowly closed.

Gulde

TOP: E. Groves, M. Clark, V. Crissinger, J. Brooks, G. Hessler, C. Rosenkranz, B. Barclay, F. Oberlin, H. Miller, A. Nissen, J. Wood.
SECOND: C. Coates, E. Swern, R. Snow, F. Hill, E. Hart, K. Bolland, F. Cox, F. Kerr, E. Landes, C. Hamilton.
FIRST: I. Fox, D. Reynolds, G. Curtis, Mrs. Gulde, H. Kline, P. Rohm, M. Pugsley, M. Morris, L. Stout.

For more than three decades now, 137 Elm Street has been a dormitory address. The large dining room of which one may catch a glimpse from the parlors is reminiscent of days when Gulde House was famed for excellent food and coeducational dining. Residents today starting out for Talcott three times a day especially at that early breakfast hour, think a bit longingly of former days. In more recent years that dining room has been the scene of many and varied holiday celebrations.

If you've never sat before the fire on a Sunday evening and sniffed the most alluring odor of fresh popcorn and then been presented with a brimming bowl, you've missed one of Mrs. Gulde's special treats. This is a house of countless traditions; famous events and famous people are part of its heritage. And today it still makes history.

Johnson

TOP: J. Judson, M. Harn, M. Griffin, J. Kampmeier, J. Graber, M. Lotz, V. Everhard, L. Hayes, L. Manget, B. Shaffer, V. Lang.

SECOND: O. Curtis, M. Rudd, C. Hoffman, L. Pauly, A. Fitts, E. Crowell, C. Gegenheimer, L. Wesley, O. Angevine, M. Gotschall, D. Smith, R. Salisbury.

FIRST: H. Schrack, J. Coston, F. Lang, Mrs. Crafts, M. Fletcher, H. Hoffman, M. Aber.

After the long trek out to the Arb, stop at Johnson, the Half-Way House. Everything for your entertainment—an excellent view from the back porch—ask the Freshmen! Two big chairs in our "cubby-hole" make it a perfect smoking room.

Since our new Love-Seat was so adequately initiated early in the fall, it's liable to feel slighted when the benches under the willows begin holding their own.

You can even enter an interesting debate on the relative worths of Cab Calloway and the Boston Symphony. Drop in any Saturday afternoon and have a cup of tea with us.

TOP: D. White, C. Hecklinger.

FOURTH: R. Matson, E. Masslich, G. Wanner, K. Schmitkons, H. Murphy, H. Matson, A. Wanner, R. Radinse, N. Merchant.

THIRD: M. Buzenberg, R. Raymond, M. Vining, E. Hunter, M. Yeakel, R. Burkholder, P. Duncan, D. Pierce, R. LaDow.

SECOND: H. Senne, H. Gosling, M. Searle, A. Ellsworth, S. Smith, E. Johnson, L. Thompson, C. Willard, V. Barrick.

FIRST: D. Dexter, E. Barrick, Mrs. Kell, E. Volk, M. Matteson, E. Kiddle.

Keep

Set apart from their kind, and across the campus from all that is beautiful and good, the maidens of Keep Cottage enjoy a single-blessedness that is not without its charms. The very situation of their dwelling place has many peculiar advantages upon which a real estate agent (do you remember when people bought and sold real estate?) could elaborate with golden results. The opportunities, for instance, of enjoying good music are unique: in the morning the high school band across the street welcomes its fellow students to the portals of adolescent learning with blatant enthusiasm; in the afternoon one hears occasional cat-calls from Delta; and in the evening pious hymns chanted Keep-ward from Theolog windows reverently close the day with a solemn benediction.

Keep

TOP: F. Lama, C. Wolfe, E. Howe, J. Staples, V. Finefrock, R. DuMars, K. Smith, D. Capwell.

THIRD: R. Winship, A. Lewis, E. Scharmann, L. Funkhouser, B. Harte, V. Garbison, H. Sawdon, E. Klefman, R. Schnable.

SECOND: E. Dalzell, H. Bulleit, L. Dorn, C. Chamberlain, J. Waite, D. Phelps, A. Cotabish, E. Mojonnier.

FIRST: H. Orvis, E. Morgan, M. Bainbridge, M. Nesbitt, A. Partridge, H. Neal, M. Marquart.

Keep Cottage also, situated as it is on North Main Street, is singularly well suited to the purpose of those interested in getting to Westervelt eight o'clock, inasmuch as the straight line is the shortest distance between two points. In addition, its nearness to the church, the library, the museum has a particular appeal for those who have a regard for the value of time and who never start out for any place until the very last minute.

Besides the situation of their dwelling place, there are certain other characteristics about their house that the maidens love: the back yard, the spacious porch, the fire place, the blue room, the pillow alcoves, the doors that do not close too promptly upon nocturnal visitors, and Sunday morning waffles.

Lord

This is the home of one of the campus personalities, dear to all who know him—Jabby, the most beneficent and generous host on the campus. He has presided over all sorts of entertainments from circuses to cheer-up-after-exams parties. He is not an ordinary dog, as you may have already guessed. He is multi-colored and of fine pedigree. He comes, moreover, from Boston. And, if you ask us, he doesn't represent an atmosphere of "rarified air" but downright dignified and warm hospitality. He, and the good fellowship for which he stands, makes us all say, "I'd rather be a doorkeeper in the house of the Lord—"

Maison Française

For those young women who hoped to get their education, or a part of it, on the Continent under the Smith College Plan, and found they couldn't make it, Oberlin offers the Maison Francaise. Here, it is rumored, we may acquire all the polish of a sojourn abroad, no matter how mal élève we may have been as Freshmen. But this European atmosphere does not awe the men of the campus. In fact it is known that many an undergraduate has furthered his education and enriched his experience through his contacts with the French House. To those who would seek this enrichment, we echo the words of the college bulletin: An early application is suggested. But don't let that new twenty-four hour clock fool you, men; you've got to have your date back at twenty-two o'clock!

In September 1932 May Cottage was reborn as a college, instead of a Kindergarten, dormitory, housing under its gabled roofs seventy-five girls. All had been speculating for months over the hinted luxuries of the house and were overjoyed to find their anticipations far exceeded. The living room, tastefully decorated in antique rose and green, and the dining room, with its long envied French windows, delighted everyone.

New as May Cottage is, it already has established customs that give it originality on the campus. After football games and hours of studying at the "lib", the Saturday afternoon teas are always welcomed.

May

Birthday parties are grand fetes with clever decorations and lighted birthday candles. The house-warming in the fall set a standard of simple informality for all the social affairs of the house.

Perhaps the best indication of the true May spirit is to be found in the cooperation of the house under its self-governing system. The house, large though it is, has abolished proctors and spies and put in their stead a system based on individual responsibility. The success of this experiment has been signal.

Noble

TOP: M. Harger, A. Hyde, H. Fliedner, B. Shuman.
SECOND: L. Kerr, K. Satterthwaite, M. Andrews, V. Myers, K. Hoffman, J. Bucher.
FIRST: B. Grabill, D. Waterbury, L. Cressman, B. Frankel, C. Brown.

Noble? Ah yes, that house with the ideal matron. It is not often that twenty girls and their matron live as harmoniously as at Noble. Those Sunday morning breakfasts in her room, when last night's dance and tonight's dates and other equally important subjects are discussed—only one of the numerous contacts they have together.

And there is the back yard. The fact that practically all the benches are broken down is evidence of the progress of youth. Even without them Noble carries on. One-half—exactly one-half of those who make use of that lovely garden have what is commonly called an "understanding." Is it only the garden?

Pyle Inn

TOP: K. Neilson, K. Edwards, L. Rusza, J. Marks, S. Metcalf, J. Krider, M. Hopkins, M. Hasselriis, K. Robertson, R. Jones, H. Dean, R. Kent.
THIRD: R. Bell, M. Shelton, J. Showalter, D. Brandberg, E. Steck, E. Williams, B. Moos, M. Bethea, I. Maki, J. Collier, D. Frazier, H. Galkin.
SECOND: J. Reid, V. Benson, D. Osborn, J. Jelliffe, E. Hiatt, Mrs. Haddock, L. Hill, S. Humphrey, M. Newcomb, F. Martin, W. McRoberts.
FIRST: L. Schuman, M. Winickoff, C. Krister, J. Rasooli, K. McCloskey, W. Hastings, S. Hluchan, D. Morrison.

From the mystical illusions of a fairy castle dance, to an old fashioned version of a Christmas reunion of the Jukes and the Kallikaks—with all the trimmin's—including means of transportation in an antiquated wagon full to the hub with jubilant Jukes, drawn by an antiquated horse—to Aunt Mabel Haddock Kallikak's excellent dinner—thus and so Pyle Inn enhances its social prestige.

The war is on—with the coming of the spring weather, competition for the use of the recently repaired and painted benches in the famous back-yard is increasing by leaps and bounds—or what have you—leaving the vestibule and the front porch quite bereft of its former steady occupants—.

And life goes on with—"much ado about nothing."

Royce

TOP: J. McClelland, A. Crane, F. Hardy, E. Nicely, L. Peck.

SECOND: E. Davey, Mrs. Negus, M. Rowell.

FIRST: M. Pendergrass, C. Hughes, E. Davis, J. Woodruff.

Only the name Royce House remains. For three and a half years Royce House as annex to Dascomb Cottage held an enviable position on the campus. Now its doors are closed and the twelve inhabitants have taken their places in other dormitories.

However, the good times in Royce House have not been forgotten. The Christmas Tea given by the girls for the faculty recalls pleasant memories of one of the most enjoyable Sunday afternoons spent in Oberlin. The house reflected in its evergreen decorations the happiness that Christmas brings. Hilarious pajama dances and spreads were often held by the girls. All of the social festivities were under the supervision of Mrs. Negus, who has been the only matron of Royce House.

Shurtleff

TOP: M. Simpson, H. Bayle, M. Thomas, A. Todd, F. Brewster, C. Crook, E. Lindsay, R. Zittel.

SECOND: Z. Bliss, R. Kanolt, H. Supnick, F. Brown, Miss Hull, D. MacFadden, E. Burroughs, E. Denison.
FIRST: J. Smith, E. Hughes, S. Bradfield, C. Johnston, A. Steffani, H. Malcolm.

Long ago so the legend reads, ghostly forms would steal nightly from their graves under the site of Shurtleff and wander on the shores of the "mighty Plum" (it was mighty in those days). The story even says that weary from their ceaseless walking they would stop in the grape arbor or pick an apple from the tree in the backyard before returning to their resting place. But those with a firmer tread have usurped these ghostly haunts. A green bridge spans the Plum and a winding gravel path invites those who would wander on its banks.

Let the ghosts keep their places. Shurtleff shall not mourn for days that have gone. Perhaps in future years its inmates shall be wealthy from the proceeds of spaces rented to would-be parkers. But the Plum still flows on, and sometimes even roars, or was that a chuckle?

Flanked by Baldwin and the Women's Gym, Talcott Hall commands a well-balanced view of the campus, as well as an unimpeded audition of Warner Hall. Never is this so noticeable as in the springtime.

With these influences life at Talcott cannot help being delightful. To the strains of this dubious music Talcott moves from her traditional inaugural ball to a Christmas party (with presents), "rec" nights bow to the formal, and the Christmas morning candle service is a pleasing compliment to the May Breakfast, where seniors, proud in their regal graduating finery, march down the stairway with white-robed Freshmen, who have presented them with May baskets a few minutes before. Of course, there are such things as quiet hours and bats and a roof for the brave to essay, but we try not to mention these.

Now and then one of the lesser sex gets his foot inside the door and brings the other in after it. Early in the year the Freshmen pay their respects to their betters in the dining room, all looking very pink and scrubbed-behind-the-ears. Others of that same fraternity were seen this year for the first time within these noble walls, men—think of it!—at the Talcott tea. These behaved quite well, however, because their wives were along. Quite a tea-drinking group, the faculty!

Ping-pong in the reading room has paled in the face of the new and exciting jig-saw puzzles that keep appearing. We often play other nice games here, too, such as asking each other our names at the first of the year, and weeping because we are sad to go at the end.

Bachelor

TOP: R. Kutchin, A. McLeod, C. Olds, C. Spahr, T. Stone, P. Kennedy.

FIRST: F. Engelhart, F. Staral, D. Strong, H. Pixley, E. Lombard.

For no good reason whatsoever Bachelor Hall is carrying on in its "downtown" location for the third year. Eighteen men have chosen to remain with us and aid us to live down the honored name of celibate. The common meeting grounds of this group, the Bachelor Bull Room, is open to all who will enter, but dormant figures must be dumped from the davenports before comfort can be assured. Our only sensational episode this year—one bed burned to cinders; our only regret—refusal of the authorities to permit us to set up a beer garden.

Barr House

TOP: F. Melcher, F. Shaffer, D. Polen, W. Corrman.
SECOND: R. Emerine, G. Molnar, G. Manlove.
FIRST: R. Vittur, L. Graf, R. Keller.

Ten freshmen serve their time at Barr House this year with interests ranging from tropical fish culture to a persistent and not unmusical tooting of the trombone. Yet withal they have contrived to live in considerable harmony . . . of course there was that little matter of the light fixtures and the fallen plaster. Among the major indoor sports are bridge (taken lightly and not too often), listening to the radio, a certain kind of teamwork on the more tender telephone conversations, and lastly, in spite of the general prejudice against it, a respectable amount of study.

The green light burns always at night above the door, and has met considerable need in the past as a guiding beacon, as well as being a sign of welcome to visitors, whether they be alumni or students.

How vain is life. While the pillars of society crumble about them, they squander their time arguing with sleepy telephone operators and going in debt; trying to balance fictitious accounts and preparing for the ministry; imitating the lark and trying to contract a conception of Contract Bridge; bullying a complaisant youth and complaisantly "taking it;" adding salt to sex and smoking cigarettes. All this while civilization disintegrates at their very doorstep. Yes, how vain is life.

Of course, the dim, fading past of this house has seen such characters as co-eds, monks, cardinals, and even popes, but now—investigate the significant lives of these distinguished Ambassadors who lend dignity to the Oberlin Embassy.

Sunday afternoon: the New York Philharmonic competing successfully (?) with a group of diplomats determining world's destiny (over a hand of pinochle): Wednesday night: a regale served by the chief ambassadress, Mrs. Richards; later, a conference presided over by some eminent envoy from the Oberlin faculty; Thursday night: the German Embassy's message is received—"Vas you 'dere, Charley"; Saturday (?) well, as you know, the men are in the diplomatic service.

Nothing reveals how Delta men live, think, diddle away their time like the "Record Book," daily mirror of Delta events. Pictorial as well as literary, the Record Book caricatures the public and private life of house-brothers with uncomfortable success. No respecter of persons, the book is in heavy demand at house parties by women anxious as to the smaller details. Excerpts from Record Book writing—

Not to be outdone by Noah Hall swank, Delta men protested; got new rugs, drapes, furniture, and radio. At the radio store Delta men were haggling for a better trade-in price, were convincing dealer with beautiful eloquence when the radio weakened, collapsed in their hands. There were tears in the eyes of many a Delta man.

Years of experience with student janitors have taught the fellows to choose a non-dater for furnace stoker if they want to keep warm, long, winter evenings. This year's janitor looked steady, reliable; fooled them all. House brothers sat home, cursed, shivered, went to bed betimes.

Chief diversions of the men consist in getting dates to formals, playing a kind of easy, frank game of bridge, shooting "backgammon." Delta men keep fit for varsity games by playing handball, drinking milk before bed-time, eating the well-balanced food of the Delta Dining Room (Adv.).

The Manor of 1933 will remember: reunion in Oberlin; workmen in overalls; "will call"; football games en masse and an at home after the game; Homecoming Dinner and the miniature football field; the call to battle and the battle won; the Goofer and that Thanksgiving repast; darkness and the Guy; a song after dinner and a fest at night; Christmas party and the Lord of the Manor; contract, auction, twenty-one, and stud; surprise and that Sweetheart serenade; mid-years; nocturnal idiosyncrasies; 8:43 and Spring; Saturday nights; Sunday mornings; weeks and months together.

More than events, the Manor will remember: Tweed at the books; Tige at the piano; Tippy on his strong box; Bert patiently waiting for a turn at his own couch; Crafty in repose; Bunny off to bed; My behind a sheet of music;

These men and these events, with many more, have been the Manor of 1933. It is with the hope that the mere listing of these salient characteristics and incidents will prolong the life of the Manor of 1933, as well as add a page to the life of the Manor itself, that they are here set down. Impossible to include all of either or to explain all the Manor has stood for and has meant in this as in other years. That the Manor cannot forget.

After a brief September morn during which house regulations, misunderstandings between room-mates about shoe laces, tuxedos and such, and the invariable crash of furniture emanating from the E. C. S. were the order of the day, one hundred and seventeen Freshmen began to take life seriously. But, we hasten to add, though the dormitory was largely quiet during the major part of the day—when, every one learned, good freshmen should study—there were always breaks and interruptions of various sorts which provided life and action for the gang. Who, for example, will say that the noon crowd at the mailboxes lacked punch? The billiard room and bowling alley, to the fellows who got in soon enough, was always a welcome change; and what competition there was between the "sharks!"

The King-Bosworth room was the center of the many good-times which marked the year, and, as headquarters for ping-pong contenders and radio-fans, not to mention eager readers of the London Illustrated News, saw a great deal of the men. The attendance at the weekly broadcasts of Cantor, Wynn, and Bernie grew to be almost a ritual with the "humor"-loving brethren, and woe be to him who foolishly burst into song—or belch—as Friend Gracie Allen did her stuff. The house stags, replete with home talent which would have brought credit to professional performers, gave everyone opportunity to demonstrate his particular "long suit." And so, as Shakespeare, or was it Durante, said, "What a time!!"

There is an atmosphere of sophistication about Noah Hall. There are dignified, luxurious lounges, masculine rooms, an imposing office, a house phone system, and, believe it or not, an elevator (which, incidentally, the janitor converts into an infallible alarm clock set for six thirty). On any Sunday afternoon you will find men in lounging robes unscrambling a symphony from one of the college radios, playing bridge, or discussing some weighty matter. In the evening there is always dance music, comfortable furniture, good companionship, and, if someone can be inveigled into getting wood, a real log fire. Then too, you've heard about the entertaining Noah Hall men have done—an afternoon of "open house;" a popular fireplace, and lots of congeniality!

Nor are the social affairs always so sophisticated. The sleigh ride was certainly no tea party—it is certain that some of the participants still have memories of faces washed cleaner than ever before. And there are nearly one hundred of us, including a matron or two, who will long remember the famous Noah Hall hay ride. It was the beginning of a tradition at Noah. Every year on the night before thanksgiving, hay wagons loaded with warmly wrapped students will leave Noah Hall bound for refreshments at some farm. Bulletin notices on the days following the excursions are more expressive than pages of description. Lost, one Indian blanket. Lost, one glove and one girl's scarf. Special on cleaning and pressing.

But all is not dignity at Noah Hall. It is just as liable as any other house to outburst of pent-up spirits. Saturday night in the barracks is often the scene of ferocious battles. (Just ask the Frosh who come to straighten up.) The star-ceilinged shower-rooms have been found to possess excellent acoustical properties for either yodeling, or crooning, or opera singing. The conversations are not always concerning politics and philosophy, but may even touch upon such homely subjects as food, desk drawers which won't hold anything larger than a self-respecting scratch pad, the movies, dance orchestras, deans, and women.

But already a layer of tradition, sentiment, scratches, and dirt plus a questionably notorious record with the administration have settled this building as a campus fixture.

Parson's

Brethren, our text for today is, "Love thy neighbor as thyself, even though he be a sophomore." For it came to pass that King Tobin (not Solomon) built Parson's House (not Temple) betwixt The Embassy and The Manor. Then Pharaoh Bosworth said, "Let there be Freshmen." And there were Freshmen. And he saith unto Mrs. Brandon, "Go ye, and be with them, to guide and direct them in the paths of righteousness." Behold, the College owneth the house and all things therein.

Verily, verily, I say unto you that to obey is better than to be sacrificed, and to harken better than to be hammered. Those who have ears, let them hear, and those who have eyes, let them see; for ye know neither the day nor the hour when the sophomores cometh. It shall come to pass that Freshmen and Sophomores may come and go, but Parsons House will go on forever.

Pile Out

Pile Out, the home and haunt of that yowling white mutt (see page seventy-three), well known to the girls of Pyle and Gables as the alarm clock that always goes off at the wrong hour. After all, you can hardly blame the critter for his lack of conventions. For Pile Out also houses seven students (once there were eight but one departed for unexplained reasons). The whole house is piled high with irregularity—people coming and going, working and sleeping at all hours. If you ever feel that irregular complex coming on, pay us a visit.

Root House during the last year was a house of paradoxes. The occupants showed apparently no sense of appropriateness. The lounging room was used for studies, and the study rooms as lounges. The attic was used as a sleeping-room, and the sleeping rooms as storage places. The fire places were used to warm the house, and the furnace was rarely more than an ornament. Such a house was a fit place for a group of Freshmen, but in spite of its many peculiarities all of its occupants would willingly return to the below zero temperatures, the conversations in the next room at 1 a. m., the interruptions to work, and all the other things which make a college house something to be cursed and hated at the time, but loved and remembered long after.

The Quad, where the model League of Nations is always in session, is the hotbed of Oberlin radicalism. Birthplace of the Association for the Propagation of Professional Agitation, it stands for a free voice (and takes it) in all problems confronting the campus, community, or nation. This remarkable organization publishes its own news organ and really garners some atrocious stories, rivalled only by those of the opponent's organ, The Daily Razz. The year's activities included two "recs", a very smooth formal, a Thanksgiving party (at which a very naughty mock wedding brought a stern reproof from one of the theology professors), a Christmas party, and numerous small dinner parties.

The spirit of the Quad suffered a severe set back late this spring when it (we hope unknowingly) submitted to the dictatorship of George ("I-Am-A-Fugitive-from-the-Lorain-Gang") Abernethy. Perhaps the prevalent public attitude swayed by the Rooseveltian success, influenced such ignominious conduct, but we feel that an open attempt has been made to blot out liberty. Another Quad organization worthy of mention is the student-elected Bumper Committee. The functions of this committee are chiefly intermediary between the student contingent and administration. Such weighty questions as "Does conversation after ten o'clock constitute noise?" and "What is a soft boiled egg?" occupy this august body's sessions. When better committees are found Quad will not have them!

It is rumored that bright lights dazzle youthful eyes, but the fellows of the Red Lantern have managed to remain clear-eyed and steady-headed with only occasional relapses since taking up their new and more urban location.

The radio has its devotees and its non-licensed pilots who can agree only on Isham Jones and Guy Lombardo. But their battles never progress beyond personal recrimination; for the radio might be damaged in the melee, and then what would we do for entertainment? Well, we might listen to a certain one of us "coo" over the telephone; we might step down the street a ways and take in a movie; we might instigate a quarrel between the inseparable of the south room, or as a last resort there is always bridge. But best of all the boys like midnight snacks—pies and the like—especially on a Saturday night when a Sunday morning's rest can repair the previous night's disruption of the digestive system.

After house meetings there are calls for the "maestro", and then the radio gets some much needed rest while the piano takes a beating. And the harmony? The singers seem to enjoy it, and so the rest of the house joins in in self defense. Gay jazz tunes, stirring college songs, sentimental ditties—the "maestro" draws them all from the piano and the fellows attack them with gusto. Then he slides into "Red Lantern Dream Girl." It is sung. A slow pilgrimage to the barracks follows, and then—dreams.

White House

From the front the White House looks forgivably down upon a steady stream of males (alas, women are gone from North Professor, probably forever) hurrying classward, mealward or bedward.

At the back, her scrupulously clean windows (ahem!) stare upon a desperate jumble of rusting steamshovels, brown weeds, bubbling mud and new dormitory dreams.

Even with such dark views at front and back, the White House men are surely sunnier than any other campus group—for they have two downy-davenported parlors and soft-carpeted halls.

These ultra-comfortable surroundings have not made the boys capitalists, however, for the house has a communistic tooth-paste and soap system. (There are those who claim that this has been applied to clothes, especially sweaters, also.).

FROM the founding of our store in 1856 by Mr.
E. J. Goodrich, a constant attempt has been made to fill every demand of a college

Hi-O-Hi Photographers for 38 Years!

like a smart club!

Think of the Higbee Company as your own private club! Meet your friends in the Tenth Floor Lounge. Have luncheon in the Silver Grille... Louis Rich and his orchestra play every day, you know.

FAMOUS NAMES!

Our list of famous makers represented here reads like a Who's Who. Discriminating collegiennes appreciate Van Raalte hosiery, gloves and underwear, Mangone coats, Delman and Matrix shoes.

AND FOR MEN!

Famous names again! College men know Kuppenheimer Good Clothes, Dobbs hats, Nettleton shoes and Wheary luggage. Don't forget Brentano's Book Shop...nor Metzger's groceries to take back to school for midnight feasts! See you soon!
